Chapter 1 by SaintSayaka

"Wait," you say, setting your sword to your side and unpuckering your lips. "You are most certainly not the princess I'm looking for."

The man opposite from you yawns. "Tell me about it, stud."

"...are we going to continue talking in pop culture quotes?"

Chapter 2 by ZiggyStardust

Wondering how you got here? Me too. But I'm just a narrator.

You'd just beaten Donkey Kong to find who you thought would be Princess Pea, but who was Princess Pee.

"Where is Princess Pea?" you inquired rudely.

"I am Princess Pee, genius, and actually, it's Princess P-e-e."

"Well you look the part," you said as you look at his spew-green dress, his plastic tiara and his ugly, dirty beard speckled with bits of his last meal; or his last one hundred meals

"It's not my birthday, and I was supposed to wear Princess Pea!" you screamed.

"I had you fooled before with the costume," he said, ignoring you.

Chapter 4 by ZiggyStardust

"I am such a genius," Luigi said cockily, "I am better at you than everything, Mario, bro!"

"Not everything," you said an evil grin devouring your frown, "I challenge you to a game of Mario Kart."

His face turned white.

"No, M-M-Mario, bro, not that please," he fell to his knees, his voice quivering.

"Yes."

Chapter 5 by romantiCaveman

You knew it was a low blow: back when you two were known as Baby Mario and Baby Luigi, you'd always find some sly way to pull ahead of your brother in time for the finish line. It's a scary chain-chomp-eat-chain-chomp world in Mario Kart, and you thrived in it. (After all, it wasn't called "Luigi Kart.")

A more merciful brother would've chosen a different course than "Bowser's Castle," but you were not feeling particularly merciful. You had lost lives trying to rescue this "Princess Pea," dying painfully to Piranha Plants, Lakitus, and pits of molten lava. To find out it was all your brother had filled you with a rage you hadn't felt since the last Super Mario Strikers game.

"Is everybody ready?" Asked the lakitu at the starting line to Bowser's Castle.

You rev'd your kart's engine a few times. Luigi clutched his steering wheel nervously and whimpered.

Chapter 6 by SaintSayaka

Today would be the day that Luigi died at the hand of his brother. The prophecy would come full circle. Both brothers knew this. And yet, they still slammed on their gas pedals when Lakitu said

"go!"

At least Luigi had shared one last kiss with his true love before his inevitable death.

Chapter 7 by Jamin

None other than Princess Pea herself, who had joined the race at the second lap in a bright, happy green kart. Since Mario was far ahead and already almost done with the second lap, she had joined his younger brother, Luigi.

"Oh! You look wonderful!" she said, swerving to avoid a pit of lava. Luigi giggled and blushed like a schoolgirl.

"So do you..." he said, and leaned over the side of the kart to kiss her.

Princess Pea didn't decline and soon Mario turned the corner to see his brother kissing his love. He stepped harder on the gas pedal, his hands gripping the steering wheel and itching to kill.

Chapter 8 by ✨JadeDragon✨

Mario speeds up behind the two of them, crashing into Luigi and sending him off course.

Princess Pea shrieked as Luigi struggled to regain the balance of the car, spinning the steering wheel in all directions. Princess Pea began to shout.

"Mario, don't do this!" Mario ignored her and rammed into Luigi's kart again. Sparks flew as Luigi's kart scraped against the bumpers on the side of the track. Luigi's eyes grew wide, trained up ahead. There was a bridge, big enough to fit one kart, but the bumper stopped right before it. If Mario didn't release him, he would fly off the edge into bubbling lava.

"Mario, please! Forgive me! I promise I will do whatever you want!" Luigi screamed at him in fear. Instead of releasing, Mario put more pressure on Luigi's kart. Suddenly, Princess Pea appeared beside them. She put a hand on Mario's shoulder.

"Please Mario! Let him go! Let him live," her voice was tremulous, her whole body shaking in fear. Mario's eyes began to soften. But it was too late.

The wheel of Luigi's cart was hanging off the side of the edge, the rest of the kart following. Mario grabbed for his brother.

"Luigi!" Luigi tried to grab Mario's hand, but only his fingers could reach. Trying not to look down, Luigi plants his feet on the kart and jumps, grabbing onto his brother's forearm. With all of his strength, Mario pulled Luigi up until his body laying on the cement.

"Call the race off!" Luigi shouted, panting, "It's over!" Luigi smiled at his brother. Mario rubbed the back of his head awkwardly.

"Hey... I'm sorry!" He said, looking down, "I was laughing."

"It's okay, bro," he said. "We can still win."
